The woman has overcome many problems, obstacles and barriers to become an important member of society. In the past, women had no rights at all; they were isolated, neglected and abused by men. With the emergence of feminism, the profile and image of women has changed completely and from a doll in the hands of a man, she has become a queen, president, artist and teacher. This article examines the wishes, dreams and ability of women to change their position in society not only as daughter, wife or mother, but as normal citizens with regular rights and duties. Feminist efforts have been effective in many ways and have brought about a tremendous change in the position and role of women. They succeeded in removing the majority, if not all stereotypical images and giving it more importance in society by giving it political, social and economic rights.

Feminism is an honourable word today and feminists are considered to be well-meaning people. In the beginning, feminism perhaps only meant fighting for and getting women's rights. So in the beginning feminists separated women in the society they live in violently from the male society that usurped them. should be people shouting at their husbands and at the male society in general. Today Feminism has matured and society has also recognized the positive contribution of feminists towards a just society. The struggle for women's rights is part of the struggle for human Rights, because women are equal partners with men in the integration of human civilisation. The desire for Autonomy and freedom is an important quality of every human being, which also Woman. But woman has been considered in India for ages as a non-entity whose only The obligation is to serve all members of the family. Their status in almost all communities and cultures simply depends on the biological fact that prevents them from using the familiar Roll. She should deny her 'self' and make compromises and sacrifice life, which is a natural Phenomenon in society that subsequently pushes women into secondary positions. So have begun to analyze their innermost longings for self-emancipation and self-identity. It has made her feel like she had to take a stand. Obviously all these issues have influenced society. to reconsider the status of women. Hence the image of women created by the early writers they oscillated between Sati Savitri and the westernized modern woman. But it does not like most
